"Tiger Immunity" Probe Asked By Alexander

PROBING JUDGES FAVOR ABOLITION OF LASH, 3 TO 2

SAYS U. S. JURORS SHOULD INITIATE IMMEDIATE PROBE

Official Incompetence or Corruption Only Explanation of Liquor Situation Here, Says Lawyer.

CHARGES ARE DENIED BY NEUFIELD JONES

Alexander Says That He Believes Probe Will Show Washington Protects Certain Bootleggers.

Hinting that a federal grand jury investigation would disclose that local whiskey dealers are under protection of prohibition officials and that some are even protected from Washington, Hooper Alexander, former United States district attorney, Monday issued a statement containing veiled charges of official corruption.

Attorney Alexander declared that evidence is available that will demonstrate on its face that immunity is being enjoyed by whiskey men in Atlanta.

Denies Giving Immunity.

The statement brought a reply by Mr. T. Jones, assistant federal prohibition director, to whom the statement was revealed in the absence of Director Fred D. Dimuke. The official declared that the statement that any bootlegger in Atlanta is given immunity is "unqualifiedly false."

Immediately upon being shown the statement issued by Attorney Alexander, Assistant Director Jones conferred with George E. Golding, investigator for the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department. At the end of the conference the prohibition official announced that Mr. Golding is prepared to receive any evidence in Mr. Alexander's possession.

Charge by Alexander.

The statement of Mr. Alexander in full is as follows:

"When consideration is given to the fact that the several prohibition laws, state and national, are being daily violated in Atlanta, the notoriety of the guilty parties, and the reckless disregard of caution in which they operate, no explanation is possible except official incompetence or official corruption.

"In the light of some facts which I personally know, and others for which I am told that witnesses can be produced, I feel warranted in expressing the opinion that the federal grand jury should, of its own initiative, set on foot an exhaustive inquiry to determine whether there are bootleggers in Atlanta who are confident of immunity from prosecution, whether there are any who are in the actual enjoyment of immunity, and, if so, why.

"I am of opinion that an adequate investigation will show that there are even some who are protected from Washington. Evidence is available that will, on its face, demonstrate that this is true, unless it can be explained away by matter not now apparent."

Reply of Jones.

The reply of Assistant Director Jones follows:

"I have no doubt Mr. Alexander now knows a great deal more about the whiskey situation since he is out after a term of eight years as district attorney than he knew when he was in. His activities now are a great contrast to his activities as district attorney. Some of the bootleggers now operating in Atlanta and who have been caught, also operated when Mr. Alexander was district attorney. Why didn't Mr. Alexander take some action? Further than that his article on only one man out of two things. He is calling Washington's attention to the fact that a serious crime was made when he was separated from the federal payroll or that he is preparing to enter politics to fore the people and is announcing a skeleton platform. If this last be true he is likely to find that a great number of the whiskey voters at large will be unable to vote before the election.

"The federal prohibition enforcement office has two agents in Atlanta, to cover the city and five adjacent counties, but in spite of this fact we no longer have more than was done when

Specialist Is Combining Rome's City Dump Pile For Lost Radium; $3,000

Rome, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—An Atlanta expert is here today looking for a quantity of radium valued at $3,000 lost at the Harbin hospital Sunday evening following an operation.

It appears that the radium had been used and was inadvertently thrown into a waste basket by one of the nurses and thence found its way with garbage and rubbish into the city dump pile. When the loss was discovered today immediate steps were taken in an effort to recover the radium.

The hospital was insured against this loss and the representative of the insuring company is here armed with an instrument for its recovery. The city dump pile is being guarded.

STUBBORN FIGHTS TO MARK SESSION OF LEGISLATORS

With Many of General Assembly Already in the City, Interest Increases in Program for Year.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT IS TO FACE BIG BATTLE

Tax Legislation Still Up in the Air and No Report Is Expected—Meeting Is Called This Afternoon.

With many of the leaders of both houses of the general assembly already in Atlanta, and with scores of others due to arrive today, it became certain Monday that a number of stubborn battles will mark the 1922 session of the legislature, which begins Wednesday morning, with special attention being paid to the state highway commission and to tax legislation.

It has become known that the rock quarry which the department bought about a year ago has proven a white elephant on its hands, and that property now is on the market for sale at practically anything that may be offered for it; that the grade of material is by no means what it was represented to be while the sale offer was pending, and, in addition, that it proved so expensive to get stone out of the quarry that the department has been forced to abandon it and buy material from private concerns where it can be had at a much less figure.

Stubborn Fight Certain.

Incidentally it is learned in the same connection that the majority and minority committee reports, made up after investigation of the highway department last year, are to be pulled out of the pigeon hole early in this session, and one faction is going to make a stubborn fight to have the McMichael minority report, which roasts the highway department pretty roundly, made the sentiment of the house. Whether that is done or not, there is bound to be a renewed effort made to have still another investigation of the department this year, in which, it is learned, the matter of a number of purchases will be most carefully scrutinized and, it is intimated, some sensational developments are probable.

The joint committee in whose hands has been placed all the pending tax legislation, and which was unable to agree a couple of months ago when the income tax plan was under discussion by them, will be called to meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the senate chamber by Chairman George H. Carwell, who is now in Atlanta.

Bankers Will Appear.

Requests have been made by the bankers' association and the manufacturers' association for a hearing before the committee, and both of these will enter a vigorous protest against the income tax plan. On the other hand, it is learned, it will be put squarely up to the bankers that, if they persist in fighting the income tax plan, they may be forced to accept a stamp act covering all notes and mortgages handled by them and, in order to prevent the burden being passed on to the borrower, a companion bill will be introduced to provide that any rate of interest greater than 8 per cent shall be usury and where usury is proven the interest and principal both shall be forfeited.

Members of the joint tax committee Monday night predicted that Tuesday's meeting will not result differently from the last one held, and that the con-

POWER COMPANY TO SEEK DELAY IN GAS HEARING

Georgia Railway & Power Company Will Contend That Board Is Acting Prematurely.

QUESTION NOW PENDING IN THE SUPREME COURT

Commission Without Authority to Change Rates Until Court Renders Decision, Is Contention.

A motion setting forth in substance that the state railroad commission is acting prematurely and without authority in ordering the Georgia Railway and Power company to show cause on July 25 why its gas rates should not be revised, will be argued before the board by attorneys of the corporation today, it was learned Monday night from authoritative sources.

The public utility corporation will contend that the question which the commission has ordered considered is now pending in the United States supreme court and that the decision of this bench should be awaited before further action is taken by the board, it was stated.

Appeals to Court.

Early in 1922 the company appealed to the United States court on a decision handed down by the railroad commission reducing gas rates 10 cents on each 1,000 cubic feet. The corporation contended that this reduction would cut $100,000 from the company's revenue each year and was so drastic that it would result in confiscation of property.

The reduction, it was further contended, would make it impossible for the company to earn a fair profit on its investment. The case was argued in New Orleans before three federal judges. The appeal was denied.

Bond Pledged.

A bond of $100,000 was posted by the corporation and the old rate continued in force. The hearing before the high court is set for November 13.

Atorneys for the corporation, late Monday night, when asked about the motion to be filed Tuesday morning, stated that they should not discuss the matter since the commission had not been informed of the nature of the motion.

RESERVES OF COAL DWINDLE RAPIDLY

President Harding Determined to Avert Serious Catastrophe as Urgent Situation Is Disclosed.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER

United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, June 26.—President Harding, confronted with the cold fact that America's great coal reserves are being so rapidly depleted that her industries, including the railroads, will have wiped them out within from seven to ten weeks, is preparing to terminate, if possible, the dangerous situation.

Perhaps no more dramatic distress signal could be blown than that raised by the railroads, revealing that on Monday night their total stocks on hand amounted to less than 7,000,000 tons, against which they are drawing at the rate of 145,000 tons daily, and indicating that within seven weeks their reserves will be wiped out.

A relatively acute situation faces all other industries, which are estimated to have at their disposal now only about 15,000,000 tons in surplus stocks. With approximately 5,000,000 tons of coal being mined weekly, the drain on the surplus by all industries has amounted to approximately

Wilbanks' Photo Secured After Many Difficulties

CHARLES W. WILBANKS.

The above photograph of Wilbanks, whose death is said to have been caused by poison administered by Dr. J. G. Saggus, now charged with murder, was worn in a wrist watch or locket of the present Mrs. Saggus, who, before her marriage to the Harlem physician, was the wife of Wilbanks. The photograph, no larger than a dime, was lost by Mrs. Saggus shortly after her second marriage.

Determined Search by Constitution Correspondent Results in Discovery of Much-Desired Picture.

A small photograph—no larger than a dime—lost from a wrist watch or locket worn by the present Mrs. J. G. Saggus, when she moved from home in Tyrore in May, shortly after marrying the Harlem physician, now held for murdering his first wife and Charles W. Wilbanks, husband of the second Mrs. Saggus, has resulted in The Atlanta Constitution publishing the first picture of the dead man.

For seven days in four Georgia cities, Constitution correspondents worked almost day and night to secure a photograph of Wilbanks. When Dr. Saggus was charged with double murder on June 19, J. E. Shannon, The Constitution's correspondent in Commerce, discovered a photograph of Wilbanks at the dead man's brother's home, near Commerce, on the same afternoon.

Photo Promised.

Publication of the photograph was refused, but Mr. Shannon was promised that if any newspaper was given the use of it, The Constitution would be given first consideration. On Tuesday, members of the Wilbanks family decided to permit publication of the photograph and informed Mr. Shannon that it would be sent to him early Wednesday morning.

In the meanwhile, another Atlanta newspaper learned of the photograph and secured a promise from the family of Rev. J. M. Hawkins, in Decatur, that if it was decided to publish it, that paper would be given first consideration. Accordingly, a telegram was dispatched by the Hawkinses for the photograph in Harlem late Tuesday afternoon. The picture was mailed to Decatur early Wednesday instead of being placed in the hands of The Constitution's Commerce correspondent.

Refused Both Papers.

Owing to a desire to avoid publication of the Wilbanks' photograph and the promises given to two different newspapers by private individuals in two different cities, the Hawkins family to date has refused publication of the picture.

Boyes Picklen, Jr., The Constitution's Washington, Ga., correspondent, however, had three men working to locate another photograph of Wilbanks during the week, and on Saturday afternoon, he received information that the desired picture was in possession of a young farmer residing 27 miles away. He left immediately in an automobile and was successful in his efforts, despite the fact that correspondents of several Georgia dailies and a large news association had been searching for the same object for six days.

Found in Home.

"The young man," writes Mr. Picklen, "came into possession of this picture when Saggus married the

$3,000 IS PLEDGED BY GEORGIA WOMEN FOR CLUB CENTER

General Federation Raises $120,000 in Hour for Purchase of Headquarters at Washington.

WILL GIVE SUPPORT TO 18TH AMENDMENT

Resolutions Passed, Urging Compulsory Kindergarten Laws and Indorsing Near East Relief Work.

BY LOUISE DOOLY.

Editor Woman's Dept. Constitution. Chautauque, N. Y., June 26.—The General Federation of Women's Clubs raised approximately $120,000 in an hour and five minutes Monday on the purchase price of $150,000 for federal headquarters at Washington.

The Georgia federation pledged $3,000. Additional pledges from Georgia were made by Mrs. W. E. Judd, of the Dalton Women's club, who gave $100 for equipment of the office of headquarters director, Miss Lida Hafford; Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president of the Atlanta Women's club, gave $100 from the club for equipment; Mrs. H. H. Pitt, of Tifton, gave $100 towards contributions in honor of Mrs. Winter, a national president, which amounted to $31,000; Mrs. E. A. Womack, of the Clarkston Civic club, gave $5 in honor of her new granddaughter. Pledges were made by state and city federation clubs and individuals.

Opposed to Jazz.

The federation went on record as opposed to jazz and to obscene songs, after a report had been made by the federation music committee that at least two-thirds of the present-day songs should be prohibited. The music put on sale in various parts of the country will be watched by committee and the necessary steps taken to prevent sale.

Resolutions were passed urging the states to work for state and compulsory kindergarten laws, this both as an educational measure and for prevention of crime; for indorsement of the work of Near East relief, and for federation effort backing legislation necessary to enforce the 18th amendment and popular education looking to its observance.

Conferences were held with executive men, with Judge John Barton Payne, of the Red Cross, and Commerce.

MALICE CHARGED BY CLARK GREER

Former U. S. Investigator Says His Arrest Is Result of His Probe of Charges Against Dimuke.

Charges that his arrest on a prohibition warrant Monday was the result of malice toward him were made Monday night by Clark Greer, well-known republican, of Augusta.

The former investigator of the department of justice charged that the warrant was sworn out by Fred D. Dimuke, federal prohibition director, because of his activities a few months ago in investigating an alleged instance where Director Dimuke, it is claimed, protected a supply of whiskey, and his more recent activities which brought about the present grand jury probe into alleged illegal assessments for the republican educational fund.

"The very fact that charges are being brought three years after the alleged violation is enough to show that the warrant is based on malice and not on any sincere desire to prosecute," Mr. Greer said.

Investigated Dimuke.

Several months ago Greer secured an appointment as an investigator for the department of justice. While holding that commission he came to Atlanta and investigated a report that Director Dimuke had refused Harry Saphire, prohibition agent; permission to raid an alleged supply of liquor at

BRITAIN WILLING TO OPEN LEAGUE DOOR TO GERMANY

London, June 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—Asked by Lord Robert Cecil in the house of commons this afternoon whether he could state the government's attitude toward the admission of Germany to membership in the league of nations, Prime Minister Lloyd George replied that Great Britain would be willing to support a proposal for Germany's admission.

In answer to Lord Robert's question, the prime minister said: "This is not a question which concerns Great Britain alone; it primarily concerns Germany herself. So far as his majesty's government is concerned, we would support a proposal to admit Germany to the league."

State Department Makes Urgent Demand on Obregon Administration for Captive's Return "Unharmful."

$5,000 RANSOM SENT TO BUY FREEDOM

Mystery Shrouds Case, Many Rumors Being Circulated in Mexico City. Mrs. Bielaski Safe.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Mexico City, June 26.—Mystery today still surrounded the kidnapping and holding for ransom of A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the bureau of investigation of the American department of justice during the war and of Manuel Barcen, an attorney, near the Hacienda San Gabriel, in the state of Morelos.

Mrs. Bielaski has merely stated that the holdup occurred yesterday, and she pleaded physical exhaustion as an excuse from making a lengthy statement. She declined to name the sum of the ransom demanded or to give out any other information, merely stating that all matters were in the hands of the United States embassy.

One rumor circulated here was to the effect that Mr. Bielaski was an ordinary prisoner of the civil authorities in some obscure village in Morelos. Another was that he was being held at the instigation of his personal enemies, gained while acting in his official capacity with the United States government.

RANSOM IS ON WAY.

New York, June 26.—Ten thousand pesos ($5,000 American money) is on its way from Mexico City into the Cuernavaca hills, to ransom A. Bruce Bielaski, who was seized by Mexican bandits, it was announced today by Frank L. Sample, vice president of Richmond Levering & Co., the concern of which Bielaski is an official.

Mr. Sample said that he was notified through an American bank that a banking company in Mexico City was "making cure of the ransom" and would hurry it to Cuernavaca.

STATE DEPARTMENT DEMANDS RELEASE.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL.

United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, June 26.—Urgent representations have been made by the American government upon Mexican authorities to effect the release "unharmful" of A. Bruce Bielaski, captured by bandits and held for $5,000 ransom.

Pending the immediate outcome of these, the state department probably will make no further move. A message from Charge d'Affaires Sumnerlin, at the American embassy in Mexico City, reported that every possible representation had been made to the proper authorities. It added that Mrs. Bielaski had not been kidnapped by the bandits and had arrived safely in Mexico City.

Because of the prominence of Bielaski, both because of his services as chief of the department of justice bureau of investigation during the war and in the oil business later, the kidnapping has served to accentuate the uneasiness of American authorities over the Mexican situation generally.

Personal Factor.

INHUMANITY CHARGES NOT UPHELD, THEY SAY

Lack of Intensified Farming, Rather Than Lack of Fertility of Land, Blamed for Poor Production.

Sweeping recommendations of changes in the system of punishing and handling prisoners at the state prison farm at Milledgeville and in buildings and equipment of the state institution were drafted at a session here Monday of the five superior court judges who recently conducted an investigation of the prison.

Features of the findings of the judges were as follows:

Recommendation, by a vote of 3 to 2, that the system of flogging prisoners be abolished. On this one point alone did the judges disagree, two holding that whipping is justified.

Declaration that the farm is conducted in an inefficient manner, and that a change to intensive cultivation and proper business administration will make it self-supporting.

Water Supply Called "Menace." The assertion that the water supply is a menace to the lives of all prisoners, and recommendations that a modern water plant be immediately installed.

Approval of immediate screening of practically all the buildings at the prison plant in order to protect the health of inmates from disease-carrying insects.

Urgent recommendation that an adequate supply of bedding be provided in order that the present condition of filth and the presence of vermin may be rectified.

A sweeping denunciation of the system of feeding prisoners relating both to the quality and quantity of food served, which is declared to be very poor and lacking in variety.

Failure to attribute these conditions to malfeasance—neglect of any official, but a general assertion that lack of funds is mainly responsible.

Governor to Report of the judges, the contents of which were authoritatively learned by The Constitution Monday will be submitted to Governor Hardwick Tuesday by Judge W. E. Searcy, of Griffin, chairman of the commission of superior court judges.

The judges' report, it is learned, states that while there must necessarily be some humane system of punishment in order to curb the unruly criminal elements that make up the personnel of the farm, it is imperative that punishment in all instances be reasonable.

Find No Brutality.

They found, however, no brutality or inhumanity in this regard, unless the whipping is such inherently.

"All of us are agreed," the report will state, "that whipping is to be recognized and used as a form of punishment it should never be used for trivial offenses and should only be used as a last resort and after all other means to correct objectionable conditions and enforce discipline have been employed and failed."

poised purchase of a new prison farm. The judges found that "while much of the land is badly broken and very poor and does not, according to the present inefficient methods of cultivation, produce a sufficient portion of food to support itself and the prison, this fact is due to lack of a system of intensified farming rather than to the lack of fertility of the land."

"There is too much scattering and over too wide a territory," the report will assert. "There seems a careless effort to cultivate a greater portion of it and no proper method of cultivating any part of it. If the farming enterprise were restricted to a support might be made on this farm. Only the best lands should be used for crops and these greatly diversified for the production of food stuffs. We believe with the proper methods of husbandry this farm can be made to produce much more of the supplies needed by the prisoners and to remove

In large measure the alleged inadequacy of funds for its proper functioning. Commenting on the tuberculosis hospital, the report will state that while the location of the building is an ideal one, the structure is appalling but ideal. It is a cheap type and has been in use for many years, much of the plastering having fallen, the roof leaking and the entire building being in a bad state of repair.

The judges are apparently a kind and sympathetic man, the report will say, and is doing the best he can. The investigators, however, will declare that it is a shame that the afflicted inmates, even though criminals, are not better provided for than they are now. The judges recommend that the legislature provide funds for the erection of a new and well-equipped building, but if this is impossible, that sufficient funds at least be provided to thoroughly screen the present building, to install drop curtains over the openings for ventilation so as to keep out rain and wind, to provide a heating plant and an abundance of bedclothes and warm clothing and the furnishing of that character of diet which science prescribes for sufferers from the ravages of tuberculosis.

Will Stand Condemned. "If our state fails to do these needed and indispensable things, the report will assert, it must stand condemned as cruel and inhuman towards these unfortunate and scourged wards. There was before us evidence that the beds and bedding in this building have in the past been very unsanitary, but this condition appears recently to have been largely corrected."

In the male and female buildings the judges discovered that there is a crying need for adequate screens, particularly in the infirmaries, where they found that patients were subjected to many discomforts and unhealthy conditions. Both buildings are reported to be in a fair condition of sanitation considering the paucity of facilities and equipment available, but the report will declare that there is still room for great and much-needed improvement.

In the sleeping quarters sufficient bedding is supplied or not used, the report will show, as the sheets and blankets were found to be in filthy condition. Considerable complaint was made about the presence of vermin and bedbugs, and the commission found vermin present, it is stated. To cure this, more frequent changing of bedclothes and careful disinfecting of beds is recommended.

White Men in "Cage." Taking it for granted that the incarceration in the "cage" of two white prisoners said to be mentally deranged is necessary, the judges found that the location of the "cage" was undesirable on account of unsanitary surroundings, and they recommended that the law be changed allowing prison authorities to transfer mentally deranged and dangerous prisoners to the state hospital.

Dining rooms are found to be as clean as could be reasonably expected, but the kitchens are declared to be unclean and in need of screening. It is also recommended that an inclosed shed be provided where prisoners could take exercise, and place beds now available for this purpose.

Quality of the food served to prisoners is poor, the report will state. Substantially the same character of food is served to well and sick, and the biscuits especially are not fit to eat, it will be added. Addition of cooking equipment and the providing of a greater variety of food is strongly urged by the commission.

Water Supply Condemned. The water supply—"if it can be distinguished by its character," the judges find, "is in actual peril from existing conditions. Immediate installation of a modern water plant of sufficient capacity to insure an adequate supply of pure water for drinking, cooking and bathing purposes available to prisoners at all times, is strongly recommended. The present water supply pumped from a creek and shallow surface wells is termed muddy, obviously unwholesome and subject to become infected, it is stated. This does not apply to drinking water, which is supplied from a well and which was found to be sufficient both in quantity and character."

That a supply of medicines should be kept on hand so that prisoners shall have access to them within the knowledge of the physician in charge is also recommended. Except in emergencies convicts should not be employed as assistants to the physicians or as dispenser of drugs, the report will state but a sufficient appropriation should be made to insure the services of a high-class chief physician and such assistants or interne as are found to be necessary, the latter being required to give as much of their time as is necessary, even if all of it, to their duties.

LOCKE TO DISCUSS POWER FACILITIES OF TWO STATES

William J. Locke, an official of the League of California Municipalities, who will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Municipal League of Georgia which will be held Thursday, June 28, in Atlanta, will draw a comparison between the electric horsepower facilities of California and those existing in Georgia at present time, it was announced Monday.

These differences, both in regards to facilities and laws, between the two states show a wide range, according to Mr. Locke, who points out that in California more than 2,501,578 persons reside in reach of electricity, while in Georgia figures show there are more than 2,200,469 persons who live in sections where it is impossible to get current at any price.

A solution to this problem in Georgia, according to Archibald Blackshear, of Augusta, president of the Municipal League of Georgia lies in the passage of the water-power bill pending in congress, which, he declares, would enable Georgia to protect themselves and deal on equal terms with the power companies.

DRY LEADER SUED FOR LIQUOR RAID

Suit for $5,000 damages was filed Monday morning in the city court of Atlanta against F. D. Dismuke, federal prohibition officer, and J. W. Howell, internal revenue agent, by G. D. Bridges, who charged unlawful and malicious search of his grocery store and drug store at 423-425 street last March.

Bridges charges that a party of federal agents, headed by Dismuke, searched his grocery and drug store March 18, and failed to find any whiskey. He alleges that they exhibited no search warrant and conducted the raid when his store was filled with customers, which greatly humiliated and embarrassed him.

Efforts to obtain from Dismuke information as to who was responsible for directing suspicion against him or to obtain an apology for his alleged misconduct were unsuccessful, Bridges said. He says in his petition that he has never received replies from either written to Dismuke or to the national prohibition director in Washington on the subject.

Bridges is represented by Attorneys Hooper Alexander and D. J. Meyerhard.

OFFICERS ARE NAMED BY SAVINGS COMPANY

The Mechanics Loan & Savings company of Atlanta have just finished their second year's business, the firm of Alonzo Richardson and company auditing the books and their report showing the business to be in a fine condition, according to officials Monday.

After payment of the required dividends a substantial amount was converted into surplus. The following officers and directors were elected to serve for the ensuing fiscal year: J. M. Van Hatten, president; L. C. McKinney and E. E. Newberry, vice presidents; N. A. Moore, secretary and treasurer; J. L. Sims, of Hapeville, was elected a director.

the headquarters of a convention then in progress. The findings of the agent were afterwards forwarded to Washington. No action has yet been taken with reference to the affair, but the publication of a statement by Bridges in which he made the charge against Dismuke, the prohibition head made no reply.

According to Greer, he was in Atlanta Monday under subpoena from George E. Golding, investigator for the intelligence unit, and was at his office when deputy marshals attempted to arrest him. His conference with Golding was with reference to investigations he had made during his connection with the department of justice.

The deputy marshals were required to wait until the intelligence agent had completed his interview with Greer. Greer stated Monday that he has not been apprised of the details of the charge obtained in the warrant, except that the alleged violations occurred in 1919. At that time, he said, he was conducting the pre-convention presidential election in Georgia for General Leonard Wood.

In the absence of Director Dismuke, N. T. Jones, assistant prohibition director, was questioned Monday with reference to the warrant, whereupon the oath the warrant was issued by Commissioner W. C. Carter. He said that he did not have any detailed information in his possession in connection with the charge, but that he would be in a position next Thursday to make them public.

Greer was permitted to sign his own bond for $500 when arraigned before Judge Leonard Wood. He was given a preliminary hearing Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Greer is well known in republican party affairs. At one time he was vice chairman of the state republican organization. He is not allied with the J. L. Phillips faction which is now in control of patronage in this state.

RESERVES OF COAL RAPIDLY DWINDLING

Harding's Views. In this situation the president believes that not only must the threat to the industrial life of the nation be terminated before it becomes actually critical, but it must be approached from the standpoint of striking at the fundamentals to the end that a recurrence brought his first move to a halt.

Monday brought his first move to meet the approaching crisis through an extended conference with Secretary of Labor Davis and President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America. While some consideration was given during this conference to the possibility of a meeting between operators and miners with the government sitting in, it was regarded as significant that the president went into the general situation of the bituminous industry particularly with regard to:

1. Overdevelopment of the industry with its excessive number of mining operations.

2. The excessive number of men employed, and

3. The intermittency and inadequacy of employment for miners.

World Stabilize Industry. The conference developed the fact that the president is primarily concerned with the question of stabilizing the bituminous industry as a whole, in order that when the government acts, it may put forth, for the consideration of miners and operators alike, measures to this end. One suggestion advanced in this connection by a member of the cabinet is to achieve the end desired, first, by a thorough congressional investigation, looking to the creation of a government body functioning toward mine operations as the interstate commerce commission does towards railway operation. Senator Kellogg also asserted that he would call up his former resolution which would eliminate all coal operations and elimination of many in given regional districts, and the effecting of wage agreements by regional districts.

To this idea, however, mine workers officials voice objection primarily because they are opposed to government control. They insist upon the following course:

1. Workers Proposals. The president to set a date for a joint conference of coal operators and miners' officials and notify representatives of both that he will expect them to be present at the conference.

2. This conference to sit until it terminates the present situation.

3. Once the present strike is disposed of, Congress to pass legislation creating a commission with full power to subpoena witnesses and records of both sides, to the end of making an investigation that will get down to the fundamentals of the whole problem.

Following the conference between the president, Davis and Lewis on Monday, the white house was silent. Lewis gave a brief digest of the subjects under discussion, and Davis, who was present while Lewis was speaking, approved the latter's remarks, and would do nothing to disturb them.

Only Definite Fact. The only thing certain in the whole situation is that the government is determined to act. But thus far there has been absolutely no hint of government officials as to what was contemplated beyond the fact that a round-table conference appears to be the basis of the plan.

Of the white house conference Lewis said: "The secretary of labor and myself had lunch with the president, following which we discussed for an hour and a half the problem relating to the general situation in the bituminous industry and the problem of the present strike situation. We discussed the problems of overdevelopment in the bituminous mining industry with its excessive number of mining operations, and the excessive number of men employed. Also the intermittency and inadequacy of employment for mine workers."

"We also discussed the various questions that the possible stabilization of the bituminous industry. With relation to the present strike we considered the matter of a possible joint conference of representative operators and miners and the matter of district joint conferences as related to the usually followed procedure of a central competitive field conference or a representative national conference. No definite plans were decided upon."

Situation Unchanged. "The strike situation has not changed as a result of this conference. Nor is there any change in my personal attitude or the attitude of the United Mine Workers of America, in so far as the United Mine Workers are concerned, the situation will continue. The morale of the miners is unchanged, and we are prepared to strike indefinitely."

As for the president the utter fulfillment of district conferences. It is idle to assume that operators would make a settlement in one district that would place their operations on a competitive basis with other districts in which they have mines. Some companies are operating mines in eleven states.

As for the dwindling supplies of coal, Lewis said:

Already Acute. "It already is an acute situation. It will become increasingly so with the winter. The coal situation is the lower freight rates go into effect. At that time tremendous orders will be placed for coal and such coal is not in sufficient quantity for public and industrial consumption. This condition will become intensified as the weeks go on. Our industrial and domestic demand cannot be satisfied with the production of 5,000,000 tons a week."

"Furthermore, unless the strike is settled, the railroads will be unable to transport as much coal as the country now needs. and one of the administration officials stated that he would propose a resolution at the next republican caucus calling for twenty-four-hour sessions until the tariff is passed. At the same time Senator Kellogg also asserted that he would call up his former resolution which would eliminate all coal operations and elimination of many in given regional districts, and the effecting of wage agreements by regional districts.

Democrats see in this a concerted move on the part of administration leaders to stem the tide of seething criticism directed against the party by getting the tariff out of the way as soon as possible. In doing this, they believe the public will have forgotten the many disclosures made by opponents by the November elections, and that complete diversion from the tariff can be effected through political channels—possibly by thrusting before the public eye renewed activities in connection with the war frauds probe.

Endurance Fight?

Should Senator Willis be successful in putting through his four-day hour session proposal, leaders on the democratic side declare that debate on the tariff will not be reduced any more; they say they are as fit to fight on for long periods as their republican colleagues. What the result will be looks more like an endurance fight to political observers, and one which will be fought to the end by democrats.

U. S. CALLS ON MEXICO TO SAVE BIELASKI

used by the department toward Obregon regime has been based largely upon personal, though no official, assurances which General Obregon has communicated to this government. As revealed some time ago in these dispatches, much of Obregon's correspondence with this government has been conducted personally with President Harding.

It is known here that obstructions have been placed in Obregon's way, which have delayed his going the required length in meeting the American government's basis for recognition. And it has been felt that, until all parties are exhausted, there should be no action by this government either toward pressing Obregon or breaking with him, that might create a situation which would lead to an extreme grave issue between the two countries. His delay, however, has served to keep alive propaganda in the United States demanding more vigorous action.

For that reason there is hope among officials that Obregon will satisfactorily handle the latest cause for irritation brought about by the capture of Bielaski. They have delivered his representations to the Mexican foreign office in the matter in response to the foreign orders sent him by the state department through Assistant Secretary Phillips.

"Urgent appropriate authorities to take every possible measure to procure release of Bielaski unharmed. I am simply advise department of development."

It is assumed here that the Mexican government will either effect the capture or meet the ransom demands of Bielaski. The latter, however, has accompanied the Bielaski's on a motor trip, and then held Bielaski and Barcelona for ransom.

Prominent In War. While Bielaski entered the justice department in 1919, he was prominent during the war for his work in connection with German machinations in this country. He was a member of the committee of plotters and propagandists and his fight against both constituted sensational and dramatic chapters in the history of the war.

Until it was learned that Bielaski was held merely for ransom, there was concern among his family, several of whom live here, including his father, Rev. Alexander Bielaski, one of the old enemies who have captured him to meet over ransom."

literary is the most important will give to an amusing incident one giving when Congressman Burton stated that he had been in favor of a league of nations, and then when the burst of applause had died down, he added—"with certain essential reservations."

Of keynote statements by women speakers in the international conference a significant expression was that of Madame Conde di Avila, of Mexico City: a beautiful woman, a doctor of philosophy, philanthropist and social worker, when she said that the women of Mexico want the United States and Mexico to be one, not politically but in a humanitarian way and in friendship, with the friendship of France was voiced by the French delegate, who stated that whenever America asks for co-operation, France will be ready to say, like Franklin, "We are here."

Session on Citizenship. While every department of the federation has its own separate purpose and interest, every conference reveals an invariable tendency in the direction of patriotism. Sometimes this tendency seems almost unconscious, so ingrained is it in the minds and hearts of these leaders of women, and when there is a session like that of Saturday on American citizenship, in which Georgia's Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, by the way, was a conspicuous figure, the seriousness of the speakers, the absorption of the convention is such that the program takes on the atmosphere of a service and it is thus the more significant, that the desire of the federation, as expressed by its president, Mrs. Winter, is that the state conventions, even the meetings, shall to as great extent as possible, be patterned after the program of the general convention.

An outstanding feature of the citizenship conference was the expression from the American Legion, through its leader, Major Sanford McVider, that the legion will fully co-operate with the General Federation of Women's Clubs in its country-wide promotion of the observance of the Fourth of July as nation's citizenship day.

The program of the exercises as formulated by the Atlanta Woman's club "Patriotic Business" presented to the general federation by its chairman of citizenship training, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, of Atlanta, has been adopted by the federation for this year's celebration and the American Legion has also taken 11,000 copies for distribution.

The Georgia delegation is elated that their state president, Mrs. Hays, has secured the consent of Mrs. Ida Clyde Clark, associate editor of the Pictorial Review, to attend the biennial of the Georgia federation in Atlanta in October. Mrs. Clark, now at Chattanooga, is a prominent clubwoman as well as writer.

The important place given the drama in the general federation convention has brought out the news also from Mrs. Hays that she play put forward by the Atlanta Woman's club to open its auditorium in April for Howard's "Democracy De Luxe," will be presented by the fine arts department at the Athens convention.

Georgia's example of entertaining the biennial convention, Georgia's reception being the social event of Saturday, will be followed next week by Missouri and Minnesota both of which will give reception parties.

In the Old Atlanta the Union Station was considered the center of the town. With the growth of the city the center has shifted. The Lowry Bank at Edgewood Avenue and Pryor Street, one short block from "Five Points", is conveniently located for those firms which have grown with the city as well as for those which have recently moved to this city.

Just as the center of the city has always been near the Lowry---so the Lowry has been for years one of the centers of banking in Atlanta.

The whole convention, they said, is a plea to the country not to forget, as the broken veteran intends to cling to his faith in the things for which he fought.

Today was given over to merry-making for the most part, the veterans dispersing on picnics and automobile rides after having been addressed by Governor Stephens. Tomorrow the serious formalities of the convention will begin in earnest.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

Nobody's Man

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Next Week, "The Little Red Foot"
By Robert W. Chambers

A Wife's Wilks.
Tallente, obeying an urgent telephone message, made his way to Clarridge's and sent his card up to his wife. Her maid came down and invited him to her suite, an invitation which he promptly declined. In about a quarter of an hour she descended to the lounge, dressed for the street. She showed no signs of confusion or nervousness at his visit. She was hard and cold and fair, with a fraudulent smile upon her lips, dressed to perfection; her maid hovering in the background with a Pekinese under one arm and a jewel case in her other hand.

"Thank goodness," she said, as she fluttered into a chair by his side, "that you have seen even more than I do! You have the air of a man who has found out no end of disagreeable things!"

"You are observant," he answered drily. "I have just come from the prime minister."

"Well?"

"I find that Tallente has been conducting a regular conspiracy behind my back, with reference to this wretched peerage. He has practically forged my name and has placed me in a most humiliating position. You, I suppose, were his instigator in this matter?"

"I suppose I was," she admitted. "What was to be his reward—his ulterior reward, I mean?"

"I promised him twenty thousand pounds," she answered, with cold fury. "It appears that I overvalued your importance to your party. Tony apparently did the same. He thought that you had only to intimate your readiness to accept a peerage and the thing would be arranged. It seems that we were wrong."

"You were doubly wrong," he replied. "In the first place, there were difficulties, and in the second, nothing would have induced me to accept such a humiliating offer."

"How did you find this out?" she inquired.

"The prime minister offered me the peerage less than an hour ago," he answered. "I need not say that I unhesitatingly refused it."

Stella ceased blushing her gloves. There was a cold glitter in her eyes.

"You refuse it?"

"Of course!"

She was silent for a moment.

"Andrew," she said, "you have scarcely kept your bargain with me. I am not going to admit that," he replied. "You held a very considerable social position at the time when I was in office. It was up to you to make that good."

"I am tired of political society," she answered. "It isn't the real thing. Now you are out of parliament, though, even that has vanished. Andrew?"

"Well?"

She leaned a little towards him. She began to regret that he had not accepted her invitation to visit her in her suite. Years ago she had been able to bend him sometimes to her will. Why should she take it for granted that she had lost her power? It is, however, even persuasions were difficult. He sat upon a straight, high-backed chair by her side and his face seemed as though it were carved out of stone.

"You have always declined, Andrew, to make very much use of my money," she said. "Could we not make a bargain now? I will give you a hundred thousand pounds and settle five million dollars on the holder of the title forever, if you will accept this peerage. I wouldn't mind present to the party hands, either, if that helped matters."

Tallente shook his head.

"I am sorry for your disappointment," he said. "But nothing would induce me to accept a seat in the Upper House. I have other plans."

"They could be changed," he said. "You might be forced to change them."

"By whom?"

The smile maddened her. She had meant to be subtle. She became flabbergasted. She learned forward in her chair.

"What have you done with Tony Palliser?" she demanded.

Tallente remained absolutely unruffled. He had been expecting something of this sort. The only wonder was that it had been delayed so long.

"A threat?" he asked pleasantly. "Call it what you like. Men don't disappear like that. What did you do with him?"

She bit her lip.

"I think you are the most detestable human being who ever breathed," she faltered. "Supposing I go to the police?"

"Don't be melodramatic," he begged. "In the first place, what have you to tell? In the second place, in this country, at any rate, a wife cannot give evidence against her husband."

"You admit that something has happened?" she asked eagerly.

"I admit nothing," he replied, "except that Anthony Palliser has disappeared under circumstances which you and I know about, that he has forged my name and entered into a disgraceful conspiracy with you, and that he has stolen from my wife a political document of great importance to me."

"I knew nothing about the political document," she said quickly.

She sat looking on the floor for several minutes. She had probably, Tallente decided as he watched her, some way of suffering in secret, all the more terrible because of its repression. When she looked up, her face seemed pinched and older. Her voice, however, was steady.

"I am not sentimental," she said coldly. "I know what I want and I am not afraid to own it. I want to be a peeress."

"In that respect I am unable to help you," he replied.

"This is your last word?" she demanded.

"Absolutely!"

"Then I demand that you set me free."

He was a little staggered.

"How on earth can I do that?"

"You can allow me to divorce you."

"And spoil any chance I might have of re-entering political life," he remarked quietly.

"I have no further interest in your political life," she retorted.

He looked at her steadily.

"There is another way," he suggested. "I might divorce you."

Her eyes fell before the steady light in his. She did her best, however, to keep her voice steady.

"That would not suit me," she admitted. "I could not be received at court, and there are other social penalties which I am not willing to incur. In the case of a disgraceful divorce like ours, if the man realizes his duty, it is he who is willing to bear the burden."

"Under some circumstances, yes," he agreed. "In our case, however, there is a certain consideration upon which I have foreborne to touch."

"Andrew, you are detestable!" she exclaimed. "Let us end this conversation. You have said all that you wish to say?"

"Everything."

"Please go away, then," she begged. "I am expecting visitors. I think that we understand each other."

Compromise.
Tallente met the prime minister walking in the park.

"I thought of writing to you, Tallente," he said. "I cannot bring myself to believe that you were in earnest on Wednesday morning."

"Absolutely," the other assured him. "I have an appointment with Darterey in an hour's time to close the matter."

The prime minister was shocked and pained.

"You will dig your own grave," he declared. "The idea is perfectly scandalous. You propose to sell your political birthright for a mess of pottage."

"I am afraid I can't agree with you, sir," Tallente regretted. "I am at least as much in sympathy with the programme of the democratic party as I am with yours."

"In that case," was the somewhat stiff rejoinder, "there is, I fear, nothing more to be said."

There was a brief silence. Tallente would have been glad to make his escape, but found no excuse.

"When we beat Germany," Horlock murmured. "He thought of the street thought that we had ensured the peace of the world. Who could have dreamed that a nation who had played such a heroic part, which had imperiled its very existence for the sake of a principle, was all the time rotten at the core!"

"I will challenge you to repeat that statement in the house or on any public platform, sir," Tallente objected. "The present state of discontent throughout the country is solely owing to the shocking financial management of every chancellor of the exchequer and lawmaker since peace was signed. We won the war and the people who had been asked to make sacrifices were simply expected to continue them afterwards as a matter of course. What chance has the man of moderate means had to improve his position to save a little for his old age, during the last ten years? A third of his income has gone in taxation and the cost of everything is fifty per cent more than it was before the war. And we won it. That is what he can't understand. We won the war and found ruin."

"Legislation has done its best," the prime minister said, "to assist in the distribution of capital."

"Legislation was too slow," Tallente answered bluntly. "Legislation is only playing with the subject now. You speak at the democratic party, but they have a perfectly sound scheme of financial reform and they undertake to bring the income tax down to two shillings in the pound within the next three years."

"They'll ruin half the merchants and the manufacturers in the country if they attempt it."

"How can they ruin them?" Tallente replied. "The factories will be there, the trade will be there, the money will still be there. The financial legislation of the last few years has simply been a blatant nursing of the profiteer."

"I need not say, Tallente, that I disagree with you entirely," his companion declared. "At the same time, I am not going to argue with you. To tell you the truth, I spent a great part of last night with you in my thoughts. We cannot afford to let you go. Supposing, now, that I could induce Watkinson to give up Kendal? His seat is quite safe and with a little reshuffling you would be able to slip back gradually to your place amongst us."

Tallente shook his head.

The prime minister held out his hand a little pettishly.

"Politics," he said, "is the one career in which men seldom recover from their mistakes. I hope that even at the eleventh hour, you will relent. It will be a grief to all of us to see you slip away from the reputable places."

The Right Honorable John Augustus Horlock stepped into his motor-car and drove away. Tallente, after a glance at his watch, called a taxi and proceeded to keep his appointment at Darterey House, the great block of buildings where Darterey had established his headquarters.

"Sit down," Tallente invited. "We are both of us men who believe in simple things and direct action. Have you made up your mind?"

"I have," Tallente announced. "I have broken finally with Horlock. I have told him that I am coming to you."

"You will help us to set the world to rights," he said. "Alas! that is only a phrase, but you will help us to let in the light. Remember, the clouds of grey mist brooded here and there in the hollows. Every now and then a snipe started up from one of the weedy places with a shrill, mournful cry, and more than once a solitary hawk hovered for a few minutes above his head. The only other sign of life was a black speck in the distance, a speck which came nearer and nearer until he paused to watch it, standing upon a little incline and looking steadily along the rude cart track. The speck grew in size. A person on horseback—a woman! Soon she swung her horse around as though she recognized him, jumped a little aside to reach him the quicker and reined up her horse by his side, holding one hand down to him."

"Mr. Tallente," she exclaimed. "How wonderful!"

He held her hand, looking steadily, almost eagerly, up into her flushed face. Her eyes were filled with pleasure. His servant, in those few breathless moments, seemed no longer the errand of a fool.

"I can't realize it, even now," she went on, drawing her hand away at last. "I pictured you at Westminster, in committee rooms and all sort of places. Aren't you forgetting weapons with pleasure. His servant, in those few breathless moments, seemed no longer the errand of a fool."

"Quite alone."

She became the hostess directly they had passed the portals of the house. She led him across the hall into her little sanctum.

"Sit down at once," she ordered, motioning him back to his easy-chair.

"But the Democrats," she ventured, "are surely only one of these isolated parties?"

"I have formed a different idea of their strength," he answered. "I believe that if a general election took place tomorrow, the Democrats would sweep the country. I believe that we should have the largest working majority any Government has had since the war."

"You are very convincing," she admitted. "Why have you not spoken so plainly in the house?"

"The moment hasn't arrived," Tallente replied. "There will be a General Election before many months have passed and that will be the end of the present fools' paradise at St. Stephen's."

"And then?"

"We shan't abuse our power," he assured her. "There will be a General Election before many months have passed and that will be the end of the present fools' paradise at St. Stephen's."

the unoccupied house, something a little dreary in his solitary dinner and the long evening spent with no company save his books and his pipe. Later on, he lay for long awake, watching the twin lights flash out across the channel.

An unlooked-for gleam of sunshine with pleasure. His servant, in those few breathless moments, seemed no longer the errand of a fool.

Georgia Delegates' Reception To Club Women Big Affair

BY LOUISE DOOLY
Editor, Woman's Department, The Constitution.

Chattanooga, N. Y., June 26.—(Special).—One of the brilliant social functions of the convention was the reception given by the Georgia delegation, with Mrs. E. M. Boykin, of Atlanta, official hostess, Saturday afternoon at Hotel Athenaeum.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Thomas G. Wilson, and the officers of the general federation and Mrs. J. E. Hays, president of the Georgia federation.

The drawing room had elaborate decorations in the brilliant blue flowers of this section, arranged in baskets. An orchestra from James-town, N. Y., provided music.

Distinguished guests. The occasion was one of distinguished persons, bringing together the outstanding women in organization in the United States and several distinguished foreign guests.

The Georgia chairmen in charge of arrangements were, Mrs. E. M. Boykin, Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton; refreshments, Mrs. Oscar McKenney, of Monticello; Mrs. R. E. K. Ransom, of Atlanta; Mrs. R. E. K. Ransom, of Atlanta; Mrs. R. E. K. Ransom, of Atlanta.

The reception was only a formal expression of the southern spirit which had already prevailed the entire convention, and brought out comments like that of a Connecticut delegate, who wondered why Mrs. Hays got so many fine women into one delegation.

Mrs. Duryea. Of Friday's speakers, Mrs. Florence Spencer Duryea, national executive secretary of the Near East relief which is well known in Atlanta, made a telling address, in which she told of her recent tour of the Near East, and of the problem of the work with insufficient funds. She will really care for 250 or help keep alive 500?

Constitution. "Seeing America First" is the name of the convention's program of music, which includes each afternoon at 4:30 in the open air amphitheater a concert by American artists of note, and they frequently give all American programs.

The first of these, an hour of American Indian music by Lianeure, the composer, and Edna Lianeure, his wife, who by the way, are going to put on in Atlanta one of the concert series intine next season, was very delightful. The music is a cycle composed by Mr. Lianeure, an Indian theme, which preserves the Indian atmosphere, but is instrumentalized according to modern theories of composition.

Mrs. Lianeure has a voice of exquisite purity and sweetness, and in Indian costume, she charmingly into the spirit of her husband's music. Mr. Lianeure provides also a lecture feature so that the concert is both educational and entertaining.

Salvi, the Spanish harpist, the only foreigner on the musical program, who was very appropriately placed on the international relations program, and who made a tremendous impression, is also to be one of the artists in the Atlanta Music club program next year.

Heroine Defies Vicious Sea Tiger In Vain Effort to Rescue Friend

St. Petersburg, Fla., June 26.—The e of the sea is replete with tales heroism, but none excels that of unsuccessful attempt of Miss Mary Buhner to save the life of her friend, Dorothy McClatchie, after one of the latter's legs was gashed in two by the vicious attack of a monster barracuda—the tiger of the sea. The girls were swimming off the beach here, a mile out. A few yards away from the shore, the monster barracuda was being lashed by an unseen force. A circle of crimson spread about Miss McClatchie.

Miss Buhner took in the situation at a glance. Her chum had been attacked by a sea monster. The sight of a similar fate did not deter her. A few powerful strokes and she was beside the sea tiger's victim. "Oh! I'm bitten," the unfortunate cried. "My foot's gone."

Above, left to right, Miss Dorothy McClatchie and Miss Mary Buhner. Below, Miss McClatchie and Miss Buhner photographed just before starting on fatal swim. Barracuda or sea tiger.

"Dot's head bobbed. Or rather her whole body jerked. Then she screamed, 'Oh! I'm bitten.'"

"I rushed to her and jerked her because I thought the fish or whatever it was, was pulling her under. In an instant blood spread over the water."

"Kiss me, Mary, I'm gone," she said weakly and her body relaxed. I started towing her to shore. I thought only that I had to get her in. It seemed like an age before the boat picked us up."

Miss Buhner was asked if, when she went to her chum's rescue, if she was not afraid that the monster might attack her.

"Why I never thought of that," she replied. "I just saw that Dot was in trouble and all I thought of was saving her. She would have done the same for me."

Miss McClatchie was eighteen. They were high school pals and champion swimmers.

BUTTERSCOTCH TO MILTON.

Did you ever make butterscotch candy?

And if you did, was it good? Or was it a queer mess that tasted like a parody on real butterscotch?

In that case the chances are nine to one that you did not have the patience or the courage to wait long enough for that candy to be done. At least that is what the maker of the best amateur butterscotch that I ever tasted says.

A Man Makes Butterscotch.

Said maker is a man who asked some of his feminine friends to make him butterscotch instead of the inevitable fudge. They told him it was very hard to get it right. He bet he could make good butterscotch and forthwith took the cookbook and did it, not once, but many times.

His explanation of his success and other people's failure is this: "They lose their nerve. They are afraid to obey the rule and not stir it, and they won't wait long enough for it to be done."

Now that episode is well back in the past, but I thought of it when I heard that man's wife say to him in regard to an important business deal: "Henry, have you heard from S. & C. about that shipment yet?"

He had not.

"Something must be the matter," she said impatiently. "I know there's a letter gone astray or something like that. Don't you think you'd better write them again?"

"Oh, I guess we'd better wait a little while longer," said Henry.

Likes to Stir Things Up.

"That's what he always says," said his wife. "We'll wait a little while longer." Now I like to stir things up and make them move along.

"There's some things that move along better when you don't stir them and don't hurry them," said Henry. "and if you will allow me to say it, my way has worked pretty well in the past."

He did not make any idle boast when he said that. He is a successful business man and one of the factors of his success is the patience and the courage to wait a while, and then, when you feel as if you must do something, to wait a little while longer.

To Wait a Little While Longer.

I think this ability to wait a little while when we feel like stirring things up is one of the hardest lessons for most of us to learn—and one of the most valuable.

Time and patience work more miracles than anything else in the world. Many a family problem will work itself out far better if you let it alone than if you fuss with it.

I wonder how many jealous wives who lose what they want by their impatient instinct to stir things up, might not win out in the end if they were willing to wait.

It is a far cry from butterscotch to Milton, but Milton belongs here just as surely as the butterscotch, for we need him to remind us that waiting can be service to ourselves and the world just as truly as action:

"God doth not need

Either man's work or his own gifts.

Who best

Bear his mild yoke, they serve him best.

His state is kingly, thousands at his bidding speed

And post o'er land and ocean without rest.

They also serve who only stand and wait."

MORVICH WILL NOT START IN DERBY

Cincinnati, O., June 26.—Morvich, who went down in defeat Saturday in the Latonia special race, trailing Whiskaway and Thibodaux, will not be started in the $15,000 Latonia derby Saturday. Benjamin Block, his owner, announced today. Morvich will be shipped east and given a rest, according to plans of his owner. Whiskaway, winner of the special race, will also not run Saturday as Trainer Jimmy Rowe has decided to get him ready for his summer engagements at Saratoga.

With these two stars of the turf as non-starters in the classic Saturday, Harry Payne Whitney will depend on Olympus and Broomstick to carry his colors to victory in the derby.

George Clark Hurls Perfect Game No Hit, No Run, No Man to First

University of Georgia Hurler Lets Down Infantry School Team, Playing for Albany.

Albany, Ga., June 26.—(Special.) George Clark broke into the hall of fame of baseball this afternoon when he let the hard-hitting infantry school team from Camp Benning down without a run, hit or a man to first base. The 27 soldier batters who faced him were retired with clock-like precision and not a play was close enough to leave a particle of doubt.

Support of the truly sensational type was given Clark by the outfield, composed of Eldridge, Satterfield and Thompson, played here Monday, Watson, Cameron and Boney, on the infield. They were snugging impossible ones and cutting off hits.

Clark was given a great ovation by players and fans alike on the completion of the game, many experienced baseball followers declaring that it was the first no-hit, no-run, no-man-to-first-base game they had ever seen.

Duff Hurls Well.

Duff, who worked for Benning, also pitched well, holding the wrecking crew of Albany batters to six singles, the best showing any twirler has made against them this year. Duff was declared by Benning players to be 32 years old, and to have had 28 years experience in baseball, but he was still good and showed no signs of weakening. He received brilliant support at times, but most of Albany's runs were the result of errors. Cooper, at shortstop; Collins in left field, and Dauch in center field played brilliantly for Benning.

NAVY WINS BIG RACE

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 26.—(By the Associated Press.) The United States naval academy eight oared crew still is intercollegiate rowing champion of America. In the greatest aquatic battle ever witnessed on the historic regatta course on the Hudson, the Middies this afternoon repeated their triumph of 1921 by winning the three-mile varsity race from the greatest collection of college shells that ever rowed in a similar race in the history of the sport.

Forced to terrific speed by the repeated challenges of Cornell, Washington and Syracuse, the sailors from the Seven finally emerged victors by one length over the University of Washington eight, champions of the Pacific coast. Scarcely a length behind the far coast shell came Syracuse and Cornell, so closely locked that it was only after a long discussion among the judges at the finish that the former was awarded the third place over Ithaca combination. Outdistanced almost from the start, Columbia and Pennsylvania fought out a duel of their own to avoid last place, and in this the New York collegians were successful, leading the Quakers across the line after the shells had ceased their forward headway.

Record Falls.

"So bitter and grueling was the struggle that the Middies' sweat-soaked uniforms were forced to be changed at intervals to hold the lead. The navy shell shot across the line in the remarkable time of 19 minutes, 33.5 seconds, shattering by more than half a minute the record made by the sailor shell when they won last year in 14 minutes and seconds.

The Seattle collegians after one of the most desperate spurts ever witnessed in an intercollegiate rowing association regatta, finished in 13 minutes, 38.1 seconds. These times, remarkable as they are, fail to even partially tell the story of the thrilling battle of blades witnessed by fully 25,000 spectators in the feature event of the 26th regatta of the I. R. A.

CRAFT SUSPENDED; ALSO FINED $50

Memphis, Tenn., June 26.—John D. Martin, president of the Southern association, announced today that Pitcher Craft, of the New Orleans club, has been suspended indefinitely and fined $50 as a result of an attack on Umpire Johnson during Saturday's game at New Orleans. Craft is alleged to have seized Johnson and choked him after the umpire had ordered him from the game.

Sensational as were the junior varsity race won by Cornell and the freshman race won by Princeton, they were merely appetizers of the struggle which rowing enthusiasts have been looking forward to since the entry for the mile race was announced. Exceptionally fast racing conditions prevailed.

KE BOONE TO TRAVELERS

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 26.—(Special.)—Like Boone, formerly of the New Orleans Pelicans, passed through here this afternoon on the way to Little Rock, where he stated that he has been ordered to report to the Travelers by the New York Giants.

Boone went to the Giants this spring and according to the statements of John McGraw, while in the training camp, he was going to hold on to Boone. Later developments and purchases by the Giants, however, kept Boone polishing the bench with this organization, and according to statements made by Boone here, he was still attached to the New York club.

TWO TO ONE FOR LOW MEDALIST

Hill Crest Country Club, Kansas City, Mo., June 26.—(By the Associated Press.)—With score of 12 each, one under par, for the course, Harrison H. Johnston, of St. Paul, and Ira L. Couch, of Glenview, Chicago, led the field today in the first 18 holes of the qualifying round of the annual western golf championship tournament being played over the Hill Crest Country club course here. Thirty-two players shot under 80, which is considerable remarkable performance.

The performance of Young Couch was a remarkable one. He is an 18-year-old player. He shot consistent golf today and gossip around the locker rooms is that the young star may prove to be one to take the measure of the present champion in this tournament.

Johnston also played splendid golf and had one six, on the sixth hole, which Couch made in four. Couch had one birdie and one eagle on the first nine, shooting the fourth in three, par for the hole being five.

On the second nine he had two birdies. Johnston shot three holes in one under par each on the first nine. On the second he had one birdie.

With par for the course at 73, the first nine holes measure 37 and the second 36. Charles "Chick" Evans, of Edgewater, Chicago, present champion, turned in a card of 70. Evans merely played a steady game, with 38 on each nine, figuring to qualify.

HUGGINS WILL STAY ON JOB

New York, June 26.—Colonels Rupert and Huston, owners of the New York Yankees, standing pat on their selection of Miller Huggins as manager of the disorganized and slumping American league champions, and rumors that Huggins is to be fired are denied.

At the Yankee offices here it was given out Monday that the owners have not recently discussed the proposal to relieve the manager, although it is well understood that one of the owners of the team consented with reluctance to his being retained this season.

The failure of the Yankees' pitching staff, which is on paper the greatest aggregation of pitchers in the game, to deliver according to its reputation is largely blamed for the team's current defeats of the team. Carl Mays, Waite Hoyt and Sam Jones, to whom Huggins looked for star pitching, have been going very badly, Jones having lost his eight last games.

White, only a few nights ago, lost one of these decisions to Martin Burke, of New Orleans, the man who has the reputation of being the premier heavyweight of the south end of these United States. Whether the decision was clear-cut or one of these half-jinx affairs this correspondent is not able to state, but the fact that Joe White was able to go with this knock-out, speaks well for his ability to take them and still keep hitting at the opponent.

Hits Hard Always.
This Alabama Wild Cat lives up to his name in the ring and any opponent of his will tell you in no uncertain terms that he is no sort of a creature to rub the wrong way, if at all. In all his ring career he has never been knocked off his feet and a heavyweight that has never been knocked down is a rare bird. Most of the opposition that is picked for a man of White's poundage is capable of knocking down a small-sized fellow, and if he hits an opponent squarely and he doesn't fall as a usual thing they are leaning against the ropes in a comatose condition.

Dugan and his manager, the genial Bill Lots are not worrying about the roughness of the opposition tonight. Lots says that he is not worrying about White and his prowess because up in the north Georgia mountains they are all tough and that is where Dugan comes from.

"He's never been knocked down, huh?" continues Bill. "Well, what will Dugan do if he is a couple of times, then if he doesn't go down it will be on account of his feet not letting him fall. That's all."

Dugan has improved. Dugan on his last appearance here did not make much of an impression on the followers of the ring game, but people who have seen him fight since this time were impressed with the improvement in his style and hitting power.

Neither of these men are boxers and they do most of their blocking with their faces or their jaws and this fight will be one of these knock-out and drag-out affairs that keep the fight fans on the edges of their chairs or standing up cheering.

A fine run of wins has been arranged by Colonel Miller, matchmaker for the American Legion, under whose auspices the fight cards are run off, and what the main bout may be in the main event and boxing in the preliminaries and this is the sort of a bill that will draw much attention.

Kid Lavigne will make his reappearance in a local arena. Lavigne is an oldtimer and he knows the game from "A" to "Z," and his opponent is due for a boxing lesson.

Peter Forstahl will make his debut in a local ring and from the reports that have followed Forstahl, he is a tough bird and a good scrapper.

Tickets are on sale at Julian Prade's, at Chess' and at the Reg. There are no ringside seats for this fight and the center boxes are the best seats in the pack for this card. The usual prices prevail.

Leonard Loses to Britton on Foul in Thirteenth

Leonard Cops Britton With Pendulum Swing While He Was On Knee Claiming Foul

No First Foul Apparent to Ringsiders, But Second Blow Was Palpable Breach Of Boxing Rules.

Ringside, Velodrome, New York, June 26.—The Britton-Leonard fight here tonight wound up in a fiasco in the thirteenth round when Leonard lost to Britton on a foul.

Referee Pat Hayley declined to give Britton a count, as Britton deliberately sank to his knees and apparently was on the point of disallowing the original claim of foul and ordering Britton to rise and continue the fight.

Impatient over what seemed to be a stall for time by the tired patriarch, champion of the welterweight division, Leonard rushed across the ring and copped him on the jaw with a pendulum swing that picked up rosin from the canvas on the way.

The crowd began to squawk and Britton calmly walked to his corner, and sat down. Leonard's second, armed all over the ring, arguing with Referee Hayley, who waived them aside and took a neutral corner.

Tom O'Rourke, chairman of the New York boxing commission, at the ringside, said he saw no blow to cause Britton's claim to foul but he did see the left to the face, which he said was a palpable misdemeanor.

Joe Humphries, announcer, seemed loath to allow the claim of foul but Hayley stuck to his guns and refused to permit the bout to continue. Humphries showed his neutrality by saying "Hayley claimed there had been a foul, though Leonard's blow was unintentional."

Second Claim Blow Fair. Leonard's seconds claimed that Britton had raised his knees from the floor and was crouching, not kneeling. It was a parallel case almost to the foul blow by which Gunboat Smith lost his fight with Georges Carpentier in London.

From here Britton appeared to be down on one knee. He did not appear, however, to have been struck below the belt and if he was struck low he was not hit hard. Britton himself had peppered Leonard very close to the waistline many times during the fight, causing repeated howls from the lightweight champion's seconds to "keep them up there."

While there was a big doubt as to the first alleged foul, the referee left no question as to the second. Britton demonstrated that he was not injured by the blow that he claims was foul, by immediately protesting to Hayley after the second blow was struck and then rising and continuing the fight.

Oldtimer Working. Up to this time the old fellow was using the hairbrush on the clever young delegate of the smart-aleck generation. He worked his butterfly left jab round after round to Leonard's face and his hard right to the body was about as hard as a hummingbird's kick.

He jostled Leonard rather severely a few times when his cleverness at feinting and jabbing had drawn the lightweight champion's guard away, but on the whole he did no damage and Leonard got much more radical treatment in the first seven rounds with Rocky Kansas than he too with Britton.

Benny bled from the mouth as he sat in his corner after the fight, but the battle was unusually free of bloodshed. Britton's cleverness was too much for Leonard, himself a clever ring man. Repeatedly he made Leonard miss fierce left looks to the head by more than two inches.

Any one of these blows that missed in this manner might have floored Jack for the count—but they missed. Britton nearly passed out in the eleventh round when he was hit with a right to the head, which was quickly followed by two solid right hooks to the jaw. He repeated the same blows and Britton wobbled.

Leonard caught him with another right to the jaw, which spun Jack to a corner of the ropes where he smashed into Leonard with both hands on the chin but Benny plunked back with a pair of left smashes on the chin which caused Jack to stagger weakly.

This was Leonard's biggest round. Britton had a safe lead on points and five others. Leonard took the ninth and tenth rounds, but the best that could be said for the other was an even break. After his disastrous eleventh, Britton made a remarkable comeback in the twelfth, jabbing and mauling Leonard around the ring as much as he was jabbed and mauled.

In the thirteenth round Leonard was butted half-way across the ring as Jack endeavored to work his way out of a corner. Benny sat down hard on the floor and then he was struck low he was not hit hard. Britton himself had peppered Leonard very close to the waistline many times during the fight, causing repeated howls from the lightweight champion's seconds to "keep them up there."

ed left three times to the jaw that had Jack worried. The pace was speeding up rapidly. Crowding Benny to the ropes Jack planted a long wicked left to the stomach and danced away. The right to the jaw Benny fought back spitefully but Jack was continually after him and kept the lightweight champion very busy.

Leonard put light left to the jaw. He seemed to play exclusively to the face. Benny put in hard right and they clinched. Jack landed a left and Kenny's left dropped to blood. Jack swung right and left to the jaw and landed both just as the bell rang. Britton's round.

ROUND FOUR.—Both walked to the center and fell into a business clinch. Breaking, Leonard landed terrific right to the jaw and then put over three stinging lefts to the face without a return. Leonard ducked a wicked left and countered to the body. After a clinch, Leonard came in like a streak and landed hard left to the jaw. He was apparently forcing a pace. Suddenly Jack backed Leonard against the ropes. Breaking after a clinch, Leonard complained about being struck on the break, but Hitler told him Britton was fighting cleanly. Britton beckoned to Leonard to come on and they mixed it furiously in the center. Britton outgunning Leonard, Jack ducked a left and ran into a stiff right to the jaw. Britton planted a stiff right to the stomach at the bell. Britton's round.

They Open Up. ROUND FIVE.—Benny landed left to the neck and a right to the jaw without a return. Benny swung Jack around with a left, but Jack landed a wicked right to the jaw which he missed. Jack landed a right to the head and got in two good lefts to the jaw. Jack shook him up with a hard right to the left eye and Benny looked serious and as the right to the head, then left to the ear and they clinched. Jack stabbed left to the stomach and then swung a fearful right, which Benny ducked. Benny took a hard left to the jaw and missed Jack by a foot with a countering right. Benny suddenly forced Jack to the ropes but Britton was just an inch out of danger of several hard swings. This was about an even round.

ROUND SIX.—Leonard left to the jaw and another left to the body. He seemed to think that he was going to take a chance. Leonard landed right to the jaw and left to the breast. In a clinch, Britton roughed up Leonard and then he was hit with a right to the head. They talked to each other and the crowd yelled "fight." Britton put roundhouse left to the ear and they clinched. Jack landed a right to the jaw (Leonard's corner) and planted left and right to the jaw. Benny fought himself free and put left to the stomach that allowed Jack to land a terrific mix on the head. Britton landed at least six left and right swings to the jaw but Leonard rallied and planted stiff right to the jaw and another left to the head.

Both seemed fresh and it looked like it would go the limit. ROUND SEVEN.—Leonard missed a left and landed the next one to Jack's shoulder. They sparred and Jack swung hard right to the jaw and then put in two stiff lefts to the body which made Benny clinch. Jack put a straight left to the head and easily evaded Leonard's counter. Britton put left to the neck without a return. Leonard put three lefts to the head that had the referee forcing Leonard into a corner. Britton roughed him again, planting two hard lefts to the jaw.

Britton landed light left to the jaw and Benny stumbled as he clinched. A moment later Britton slipped and Leonard was on him in a flash but foxey Jack was not asleep and landed a right to the punch. Rather tame, even round.

ROUND EIGHT.—Jack put light left to the jaw and another right to the body. Leonard countered with a lightning left jab and blocked Britton's right lead. They were boxing at top speed again. Jack bored in but Benny was clever on the defense and blocked several lefts. They mixed it furiously in a neutral corner, both landing several short arm jabs to the body. Britton put left to the body, then a right to the jaw and another left to the face. Benny got in a stinging left to the jaw. Then he landed a right to the jaw with a rally in the center which seemed to tire Leonard. He roughed Benny along the ropes, seeming to have little difficulty getting through his guard. Britton's defense was wonderful whenever Benny tried to start any fancy stuff. It was again Britton's round.

ROUND NINE.—Leonard started a left for the body but Jack beat him to it. Benny succeeded with three fast lefts and then landed three more to the same spot. Leonard put left to the head and then a right to the head. Jack made Benny back up with a punishing left to the jaw. Holding with an arm Britton led two lefts to the jaw and was twice called for break. Benny swung Jack Britton clear around with a fierce right just before the bell. Leonard's round by a shade.

ROUND TEN.—Leonard, with a determined look on his face, left but he was blocked and Jack chopped him with the right to the face and then staggered Benny with a left. Leonard backed away but came in like a flash. Jack was waiting for him and they clinched harmlessly. Leonard put three hard lefts to the jaw. Jack put left to the face and Leonard put over a terrific right and they clinched. Jack stuck two hard lefts to the jaw and then belted Benny right and left.

Benny got in a good left to the stomach. Britton mugged Benny's hair with left and stuck another left to the nose. Leonard put over a hard left but it was partly blocked. Leonard then landed two hard lefts to the jaw. Britton half turned aside, suddenly stuck his long left to the jaw without return. Even round.

ROUND ELEVEN.—Leonard was again first to lead, a left that landed over the head. Benny danced away. Leonard put a left straight left to the jaw and then two more to the same place. Britton, abandoning defense, slugged with Benny and got the worst of a furious exchange. Leonard staggered Britton with fearful left to the jaw and then forced Jack into a corner, seemingly to land right and left to the jaw.

Jack swung away, but he chopped

ALPHA'S HOME—A HOME.

Boston, June 26.—Home runs by Luth and Shawkey were big factors in New York's 5-0 victory over Boston today in the last game of the series in which Boston had won four straight. Luth hit into the rightfield bleachers off Quinn in the fifth for his eighth home run of the year with two men on and two out. Shawkey knocked in the ball over the left field fence in the ninth with the bases empty.

PITCHER HERBST RELEASED BY VOLS.

Nashville, Tenn., June 26.—(Special.)—Manager Larry Doyle has announced the release of Pitcher Frank Herbst recently obtained on loan from the Cleveland Indians to the Michigan, Ontario league. Herbst's arm appears to be muscle bound and he pitched one tree-hits game and another in which he was unable to pitch winning ball throughout the season. To substantiate his theory, Herbst's manager Doyle is confident that he will be unable to pitch winning ball throughout the season. # New Leading Lady Scores In Debut at the Forsyth

"Some girl" remarks "Clay Column" played by Romaine G. Callender. "I should say so" replies "Harry Richardson" played by Robert Craig. "Amen" said the biggest Monday night audience that has attended the Forsyth theater since the opening week and the "amen" was said with all the earnestness and profundity of amen corners at a camp meeting.

They, Callender and Craig, and the audience were all talking about Minna Gombel, the new leading woman of the Forsyth Players making her debut in "Polly With a Past."

Additional discrepancies, bringing the alleged shortages charged against W. G. St. John, former secretary of the water board, up to $1,300, were reported to the board Monday afternoon by W. Speeding Auto; Police
Are Too Hot on Trail

Two men, one white and the other a negro, jumped from a speeding automobile containing a cargo of whisky, leaving it driverless, early Monday morning after they had been chased for more than three miles through the Pittsburgh district by a police car containing Officers Carroll, Ralston, Denton and Owen.

The chase began at McDaniel and Glenn streets and extended down about the end of the McDaniel street car line and the shops of the Southern Railway company, finally ending at the Oakland cemetery where the machine was abandoned while running at high speed.

The car was overtaken by the officers, one of whom jumped from the police car on the running board of the one pursued, and when searched, approximately 50 gallons of whisky were found, it is charged, enclosed in sacks and stacked under the seat and in the floor of the machine.

The officers are said to have gained a fairly good description of the occupants of the car and their arrest was expected during Monday night or Tuesday.

Burglars Are Busy
At Work Over Sun;
5 Robberies Reported

The R. O. Campbell Coal company, was the victim of robbers, probably sometime Sunday, city detectives were told Monday morning. This time their loss amounted to $108.00, was taken from the safe in their branch office at 740 South Pryor street.

Entrance was gained by forcing the lock on the door and the money was removed from the safe after the combination had been worked. Virtually no damage was done to the safe, it is said.

It is not known what time the robbery took place. It was discovered Monday morning when the office was opened. Detectives detailed on the case will make strong efforts to trace the thief through finger-prints about the safe, the desk in the office and the window.

Another robbery reported to detectives Monday was that of the J. F. Alpin store on the Macon drive, some time during Sunday night or during the early hours of Monday morning. Among the articles stolen were two barrels of flour, several sides of meat, 50 pounds of sugar, a cheese and a large quantity of tobacco and cigars. The lock on the front door was forced, it was reported, and it is thought a motor truck was used by the thieves in hauling off their loot.

G. Darden, 410 Foster street, Monday morning reported to the police that a suit of clothes and $2 in money had been stolen from his room. An expensive gold watch was taken from the office of Dr. Charles F. Benson, 1315 Fourth National Bank building, detectives were informed Monday.

COMMONS BACKS
GEORGE LEN SMALL

London, June 26.—(By the Associated Press).—After a debate, which was not so heated nor acrimonious as was expected, the government tonight won a virtual vote of confidence on its Irish policy. A "die-hard" motion, proposed by Sir Frederick Banbury, unionist, for a reduction of the chief secretary for Ireland's salary as an expression of disapproval of the government's policy and failure to afford police protection for Field Marshal Wilson, was defeated, 342 to 75. The result was cheered loudly.

Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary for the colonies, in his statement on Irish affairs, made it clear that the imperial government would expect the provisional government, now that it had secured the people's mandate, to take the necessary steps to assist in the maintenance of law and order. He emphasized that the British government would not acquiesce in the coercion of Ulster by the acquiescent failure to observe the treaty which would mean the British government resuming complete freedom of action.

Frederick George, in a brief speech, winding up the debate, repeated the familiar arguments in support of the government's policy and contended that the Irish provisional government now had the people of Ireland behind it and that it did or failed to do would be the real test of whether it was fit to govern.

The question of Field Marshal Wilson's salary was not discussed in the debate as largely as might have been anticipated. Home Secretary Shortt was able to show that the ministers and others whom the police protection had been withdrawn, had acquiesced in the withdrawal.
